10.8	Zero semester:- A student is entitled to avail a zero semester on grounds of ill health or other unavoidable contingencies in attending the academic activities prescribed for that semester. This effectively means repeating the academic activities prescribed for a semester and requires regular attendance. The decision in this regard will be taken by the Vice Chancellor on the basis of the recommendation of a committee appointed by the Vice Chancellor, and subject to the ratification by the Academic Council. There will be only one chance to avail Zero semester in a programme and should be done within two semesters after the completion of the regular programme. In the event of syllabi change during this period, the student should avail the new courses being offered in the semester corresponding to the one that was lost .	Zero semester:- A student is entitled to avail zero semester only on grounds of ill health or other unavoidable contingencies in attending the academic activities prescribed for that semester. This effectively means repeating the academic activities prescribed for a semester and requires regular attendance. There will be only one chance to avail Zero semester in a programme, except students who avail maternity leave, in which case two chances are permitted in total. This should be done within two semesters after the completion of the regular programme. Zero semester is possible in the fourth semester and the student should repeat the fourth semester in that case. The promotion can be made to the subsequent semester as a special case, if the student had sufficient attendance and Internal Assessment in the semester but was unable to attend end semester examination due to ill health or other unavoidable circumstances. The scores secured under the Internal Assessment for the course will be carried forward. Further, if a student utilizes this provision

In case of conducting examinations in the immediate odd semester, an extra fee similar to that of mercy chance may be remitted. The decision in both cases will be taken by the Vice Chancellor on the basis of recommendation of a committee appointed by the Vice Chancellor, and subject to ratification by the Academic Council. In all cases, in the event of syllabi change during this period, the student should avail the new courses being offered in the semester corresponding to the one that was lost .
10.7	Re appearence :- If a student is absent for or gets 'F' grade in the end semester examinations of one or more Courses across the four semesters of the Program she/he can re-appear for that exam. This can be done provided that Internal Assessment requirements for those courses are met with a minimum attainment of B grade, She/he may be permitted to re-appear for end semester examinations for these courses either within the duration of the programme when the end semester examinations for those courses are coducted in the subsequent semesters or within a period of two semesters after completion of the regular Programme, Re-appearence will be permitted only after due recommendation from the Head of the Department and prior sanction from the University. She/he may be permitted to re-appear for end semester examination for this course either within the duration of the Programme when the end semester examinations for the course is coducted in the subsequent semesters or within a period of two semesters after the completion of the regular Programme. Re-appearence will be permitted only after due recommendation from the Head of the Department and prior sanction from the University. This facility cannot be availed for more than once for a course or beyond the stipulated two semester period after the regular programme and not for more than four courses for the entire Programme. These examinations will be conducted only along with and at the time of regular end semester examinations. In the event of syllabi change during the period the question paper should be set in the old pattern corresponding to the Internal Assessment requirements already met by the student.
